Does anyone know if there is a way to save watermarking information on the preview images? Basically what I want to do is be able to resume where I left off in a project at any time. I would like to be able to add a watermark, or make a simple save watermark at that point and locate the next image that had the original watermark. Something similar to the way you use Simpsons characters and their names and also dates. In previous versions of LR there was an easy way to do this using a watermark preset. Having to select from a preset watermark or apply a custom watermark to each preview causes frustration. Sometimes a watermark is needed for just a final edit, not to save the preview to an image file. In which case it is inconvenient to have to apply the watermark manually each time. Also, in Lightroom 5 Indeterminate Previews are used for RAW photos. When a photo is selected, a mass of previews come up. They are black and white, color, and greyscale previews. This may not be obvious, as they're not actually previews – they're a list of the image's previews. If you want to burn to DVD a single frame in a sequence, you can do this, but if there's a further change to be made, you'd need to sort the list, click and change, then click again etc. until you're ready to save. Selecting the 'Indeterminate' preview options makes it much faster to jump from preview to preview. Thinking I have pulled a set of thirty or forty sequential DNG files (.dwg) from a large batch of files saved to my hard drive, I open them in Photoshop. I choose the 'Indeterminate' preview mode and get a mass of previews. How many files do I have? Who Knows? I must open each file in turn to get to the bottom of it!

The new Color Lookup Guide feature in the latest update to Photoshop is a robust tool that enables you to understand your image content and make important decisions, like range selection and selection timing. Additionally, there's a new Content Aware Cropping feature that can be used to crop and eliminate unwanted objects. More often than not, cropping is a skill that takes hours to master. Finally, the latest update to Photoshop now enables instant feedback on your retouching using Content Aware Fill. As it is, it is a little bit confusing to retouch images with touch-screens; you'd normally notice a lack of existing content to cover than to retouch an image. However, these updates to the new update using Photoshop Touch allow you to now create Retouch options based on existing content on the screen, rather than your phone. In addition to cropping, the new update also features a new tool called the Content Aware Fill. This allows you to remove objects like posters or unwanted objects, and replace them with a new background, or objects. To do so, you can sometimes have to edit out and add existing objects on the image, and you can use the tool to use it with almost any image. It's also much faster and provides instant visual feedback when editing – the outcome is perfect. Additionally, in wake of the recent leadership transition at Adobe, the brand name "Adobe Photoshop" is being retired from the suite of features to a single product, "Photoshop." The new version, Photoshop CC 2019 v18.2, can be downloaded from Adobe Connect while the new features are not yet available to users.
